◆ A three-day garden photography workshop at Reford Gardens in Grand-Métis, Québec

ABOUT THE WORKSHOP Join Louise Tanguay this summer in Grand-Métis to photograph one of Canada's most beautiful horticultural gardens, Reford Gardens. And yes! Beginning of July is blue poppy, azalea and peony blooming season! This photography workshop will start on Thursday afternoon July 4 with a private guided tour of Reford Gardens with director Alexander Reford and Patricia Gallant, head horticulturalist. After the tour, they will join us for a welcome gourmet dinner at Estevan Lodge Restaurant on the grounds of the gardens. During the workshop Louise will share her experience and knowledge through illustrated instructional lectures. Participants will have unlimited access to the gardens as well as to the International Garden Festival. Daily sessions to evaluate and discuss our work will be held at the Reford Gardens' new administrative building.

ABOUT THE PHOTOGRAPHER A true poet of images, Canadian photographer Louise Tanguay has an original and very personal approach to nature. She has had multiple exhibitions and has been published in prestigious magazines and newspapers throughout the world. She has authored articles in photo magazines and her illustrated conferences are always appreciated by the public. Louise Tanguay has published a dozen popular works, including The Reford Gardens, Elsie's Paradise and Treasures of the Reford Gardens, Elsie's Floral Legacy.

ABOUT THE REFORG GARDENS Les Jardins de Métis/Reford Gardens are located on the shores of the St. Lawrence and Mitis rivers at the gateway to the Gaspé Peninsula. A national historic site, the gardens are one of North America's premier garden and tourist destinations. Created by Elsie Reford over a period of 30 years, they are a living testimony to her passion for gardening and plants. Today, her great grandson, Alexander Reford, leads a team committed to preserving this unique horticultural heritage and presenting the unique gardens of the International Garden Festival.

Come and enjoy this unique garden photography workshop in the company of others who share the same passion! Places are limited.
