

WATER GARDEN

Water → plant → garden → life

New lifestyle has caused people and children become distanced from the nature and organic life. This project aims to approach people to nature and environment paying attention to water. Water is the basic element of garden constituting it and without it there won't be any plant and garden. In this garden, through different sensual and emotional experiences with water, the people can feel water and are involved with it so that vitality comes to their life and the life space is formed. Water can form the life.

The water garden has a shallow circular pond the surface of which is covered with the Plexiglas and some parts are parts free. The glass surface of water reflects the sunlight and nature around combining with water and focusing the maintenance of water. There are some holes on the surface some of which are for water fountains; some for flower planting and some other are free spaces which let people touch the water. The glass surface on water induces the walking on water. There is a slot on the glass pond which creates the stream with a fountain on the water. Therefore, the visitors can have different experiences from the water; walking under water or on the water, touching the water through the fountains or free parts of the glass.

All around the pond, there is a spiral wooden surface on both sides of which the crescent benches are located for people to sit on with the flowers inserted inside. There are fountains in front of the pond water comes from randomly motivating the people's excitement. There are inserted some frames around the ponds on which the visitors can write their names or memorial sentences and take photo. These frames can cause visitors to see the views of the surrounding gardens framed.
